According to the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, 16 year-old drivers have the highest fatal crash rate. In fact, most fatal accidents among 16-year-old drivers are caused by inexperience and driver errors such as overcorrecting after veering off the road, speeding, and losing control when facing an obstacle or animal in the road.

"We created Road Skillz to make a lasting impression that instils good common sense driving skills and confidence not only in novice drivers, but with all drivers," said Road Skillz Executive Producer Scott Kuhne. "Our ultimate goal is to help make today's heavily trafficked roads and highways safer for everyone. By recreating the most common accidents with video game like animation and then demonstrating, in live action, how to react and avoid the accident altogether, Road Skillz gives the common driver the critical knowledge needed in a crisis situation."

Road Skillz is donating 5 percent of all profits to non-profit organisations that provide teen driving training and education.
